

September 2007

Gill & Maureen Meredith
Assistant Managers

Our horse has its Freedom!

Sean is our 12 year old, 17.2 hands Irish Draught horse, who we lovingly bred despite a traumatic birth - he was lucky even then!

A year ago we noticed he was walking lame over hard ground. On investigation it was thought to be caused by various things but during December 2006 his condition worsened when he went chronically lame in both front feet. He was taken into surgery for x-rays and nerve blocks to try and diagnose the exact problem and to our dismay was found to have problems with his coffin joints - a very serious condition in horses.

At first he was given an injection in the neck to try and improve the joints, but when this didn't help he had steroids injected into the coffin joint of the left-fore (his worst foot). When the needle went in, lots of synovial fluid came out which showed that there was enormous pressure in the joint.

We distinctly remember one afternoon when we were advised to turn him out on a very small area. A few hours later we found him highly distressed, literally crying with pain and holding up one leg. It was a job to even get him back to the stable. By now he was lame even walking in the paddock and on his next visit the vet told us that the prognosis was extremely poor and that nothing more could be done for him. We were facing having to put him down to end his suffering - a terribly upsetting situation for such a lovely horse as Sean!

We wrote to vet David Urch in desperation as we didn't want to lose Sean. He advised us to give him 300ml of Forever Freedom daily and to rub Aloe MSM Gel into the joints. Gradually Sean began to improve and one month later, to our own vet's surprise, he was cantering around the paddock.

After three months he was totally sound again, floating around in trot and canter, bucking and rearing when we turned him out - an amazing sight after what he had been through. We have now reduced the Freedom to a 120ml a day maintenance dose. We are very grateful to these products for giving Sean his freedom again - what fantastic results and a fantastic business. We can't help telling everyone about them and Forever as a Company.

a note from:

David Urch (BSc MA VetMB MRCVS & Advisory Board Member)

"Sean is a very lucky horse indeed - osteoarthritis of the coffin joint always carries a poor prognosis. It just goes to show that even after extensive conventional treatments, complementary products such as Forever Freedom can still produce amazing results. Interestingly, his response to Freedom was similar to many I have seen, where there is a marked improvement after four weeks and soundness by three months. Two important points come from this case. Firstly, that you need to give sufficient volumes of the Freedom for several weeks and secondly, it can take several months before soundness returns."

Note We are in the process of an update to our packaging so some products may differ from those pictured.

